UNITED STATES SELLS SOME PROPOSITION OF MR. BOWEN

The Chinese officials claim they are powerless to stop the practice and the Russian government, in the interest of peace, has called the matter to the attention of the powers. Secretary Hay and the Russian ambassador have had several conferences on the matter, but it has not been decided just what course the United States, under the constitution, can take toward preventing the exportation of arms. It is probable that the only relief lies in special legislation by congress, which is deemed impossible at this session. The Belgians are the chief offenders in this illegal practice, though it is said many arms are entering China from the United States, Germany and Great Britain.

Ambassador Cassini, who has spent many years in China and is responsible in many degrees for the success of the Russian policy there, regards the

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something. object lesson which means something. If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beet, a properly turned loin of mutton and even the deadly broiled lob. and even the deadly broiled lob-is not altogether ignored. he point of all this is that a vigor-

That the people of Salt Lake are readers of the best books published, was attested to last evening by the character of the volumes which were given to the club. The major portion of them are standard works, by the best authors, and bound in the finest of bindings. A large number of sets were donated by Elks or their friends, some of them being worth from $65 to $75 per set. There was not a single volume contributed which could be purchased in any book store for less than $1. In some instances single volumes cost $3 and $4.

The books will now be arranged in cabinets and on shelves in the library of the club building, which is on the top floor of the club. A catalogue will be printed, giving the names of the books, authors and the donators.
